"As to the outlook for Democratic success in 1812, I think it exceedingly encouraging. The party is entirely harmonious, having fought out all its internal differences. It is united its every part of the country, with nothing to darken its prospects exceptsome factionalisms in the State of New York, but they are merely of a personal character. But I have many reasons to hope that the factions in New York will get together before the next national convention. It would be suicidal to take the mominee from New York State if it were divided and there was an evident determination of any considerable body to knife the party. Outside of Cleveland there is no one whom I think of now as the nominee, but no one knows what may happen. Two years are as much as a generation in American politics. I take no stock in the ideas of civil-service reform as they were advanced by the great mugwamp leaders and newspapers and accepted by Mr. Cleveland, believing, as I do, that this is a representative government, based upon party responsibility, and not a government of mere individuals holding their places by a kind of divine right of their own assumption and assertion."

Mr. Watterson is right. Mr. Creveland would almost certainly be the nominee if the nominating convention were held this year. Mr. Watterson is not an advocate of such as Mr. Hamison gives us, nor indeed of such as Mr. Creveland might give us if he should have a second term, but none the less sees that Mr. Cleveland base on other man has.

Yes, Let Miss Winnie Unveil the Status of this country such as no other man has.

Somehow or other he has their confidence, and a prominent man who enjoys that confidence can always count upon a good following.

We include Mr. Watterson among Mr.
Cleveland's friends. But he is not blind to the teachings of history nor to the uncertainty of the future. Unless Governor Hill's friends shall cease their war upon Mr. Cleveland the wise and far-seeing leaders of the Democratic party will go elsewhere than to New York for the Democratic nominee for President in 1892. We cratic nominee for President in 1892. We lay it down as indisputable that if CLEVE-LAND be nominated in 1892 it will be a wise nomination. Why? Because the delegates to the National Convention will not think of nominating a man whose election is considered doubtful. It is not as it was in 1888, when the Democrats felt as if com-pelled to renominate the man who had been so good a President. Besides, the contest of 1872 promises to be a turning point in the history of the country. Either the Democrats must elect the President in 1892 or they must prepare themselves for the disappearance of the last vestige of the Government established by our fathers.

We have set Mr. WATTERSON down as a CLEVELAND man. But he is also a western man; and in this latter character he may be unconsciously favorable to the nomination of a western man for President. He lives not a great way from the man whom the Democrats of Ohio regard as a Mascot and as a "CAMPBELL" who is "coming" to the front. Mr. WATTERSON had much to do with the nomination of Mr. TILDEN in 1876. He is still a power in the Democratic party, and can do much to advance the fortunes of any aspirant whose elevation to the highest office in the world would tend to save to our children the bless-ings of good government and free institu-

The Mississippi and Its Levees. We have been much surprised to find that even now the levee system of controlling the waste of waters called the Mississippi river is so generally approved of by the men most interested in the matter and the men best qualified to form intelligent opinions in regard to its effectiveness. We years ago set it down as certain that it was only a question of time when the silt deposited in the bottom of when the silt deposited in the bottom of the Mississippi would compet the abandon-ment of the levce system. But our confi-dence in the correctness of our theory has dence in the correctness of our theory has been much lessened, not to say destroyed, by the testimony of experts. Like a distinguished United States senator, we feel as if we had read so much upon the subject that we no longer know anything about it.

And what a river the Mississippi is! Mr.
BLANCHARD, of Louisiana, says of it:
"It must be remembered that through the Mississippi river is drained fully three fifths of the total area of the United States, exclusive of Alaska. Even the rains that fall on the southern part of the State of Louisiana to the Gulf. Thence as far westward as the ton of the Rocky Mountains the drainage basin extends."

It is emphatically the nation's river, and it should be the constant care of Congress

FRANKLIN'S NEW OFFICIALS cratic Convention.

Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.

The mass-meeting of the Democratic voters of Franklin was held last night for the purpose of nominating town officers for the ensuing year. The town is so strongly Democratic that the nomination is always equivalent to election, and therefore the interest always centres in the primary. The contest was the closest and most exciting for a number of years past. The meeting was called to order by A. L. Gardner and the Town Executive Committee. After permanent organization nominations for mayor being next in order, Messrs. A. L. Gardner and A. W. Norfleet were placed in nomination. The ballot (secret) was then taken, during which the excitement was much more intense than it could possibly have been in a convention five times as large as this. The largest vote ever polled at a primary in the town was polled on that ballot.

CLOSE CONTEST.

The result was the nomination of Mr. A. W. Norfleet by a majority of two. A town council was then nominated composed of the following gentlemen—viz.: Captain J. A. Jackson, Dr. M. E. Doughtry, E. F. For recorder the present in-[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.] the chairman of the party in the State his influence has not been destroyed by his defeat for the governorship and he still wields a power that is not to be despised. The congressional contest next fall promises to be as interesting and exciting as that of two years ago, with the chances largely in favor of the Democracy.

ESCAPE OF A WOULD-BE SUICIDE.

A colored woman was taken to the station-house yesterday for safe-keeping, the fear of her friends being that she intended to commit suicide. It is stated that she had several times threatened to take her life, and had once been prevented from jumping into the river. At a late hour last night the woman complained of the close atmosphere in the station-house and was allowed to go into the back yard to breathe the fresh air. She made her escape from the yard, and though diagent search has been made for her she has not yet been heard from. She has not been to her home, and her people know nothing about her. The fear is expressed that she may have accumplished her purpose of drowning herself. Brings About a Lively Contest Over Snug Property.

(Special tolegram to the Dispatch.)

Danville, Va., May 6.—An interesting case came up in the Hustings Court today. A short time ago Mrs. Maud Redd, wife of Charles E. Redd, of this city, died without children, leaving a snug little fortune in her own right, but no will. Mr. Redd qualified as administrator, but an objection was made on the part of Mrs. Redd's relatives to entering the order on the ground that they believed the deceased had left a will cutting her husband off without a dollar. In proof of this they filed a draft of a will written in Mrs. Redd's hand but unsigned, in which she began by saying that she had pad her husband's debts and did not think she ought to do anything else for him. She then proceeds to dispose of her property to members of her family. This memorandum was filed with other papers in the case on Monday, and the case was continued until to-day, when Judge Aiken overruled the objection, and an order appointing Mr. Redd as administrator was entered. It is hinted that there will be a contest yet.

Charlottesville, May 6, 1890,

A large mass-meeting of the Confederate veterans of this and adjoining counties was held here on yesterday under the auspices of the John Bowie Strange Camp of Confederate Veterans, of this city. Abic speeches were made by General Thomas L. Rosser, Captain Micajah Woods, and Colonel R. T. W. Duke, These speakers urged upon all the old soldiers present the importance of visiting Richmond during the unveiling of the Lee monument.

At the close of the speaking the invitation was given to all who wished to go to Richmond on the 29th instant to come forward and give in their names. Nearly two hundred and fifty veterans signed the list. The John Bowie Strange Camp are making big preparations to visit Richmond and participate in the unveiling of the Lee monument, and they hope to take down from three hundred to four hundred old veterans on this occasion. Prosperous Trucking—Fishing—Waiting for the Railroad.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]
Yorktown was taken by surprise yesterday by the unexpected visit of his Excellency Governor McKinney. None of those who helped to elevate him to the governorship of the old Commonwealth knew of his coming. He visited the monument, the United States cemetery, and other places of interest and returned to Williamsburg. Several citizens from the "old capital" were with him. The good people of our old historic town did not get the pleasure of "howdying" with him.

The first peas of the season were shipped to Baltimore by this evening's boat. Potatoes are mostly looking well, strawberries have been going to market for several days, and the farmers are busy.

The "Izzack Waltons" are getting their tackling in order, as the "hook-and-line fish" are appearing in this beantiful river.

With patience we are waiting for the cars to come that we "all may take a ride."

Weller, and others. The large lot on the opposite corner and west of the Young Men's Christian Association building has been sold by Messrs. Crowle & Schaffer to Messrs Asher Ayres, George C. Jordan, and others for $19,700. Another lot, opposite the last named, was sold for $8,000. Three residence lots, on one of which is a dwelling, belonging to the estate of the late George A. Elick, and a Main-street business-house and lot all were sold for $18,850. H. L. Hoover and associates have bought in two lots (117 acres) near the park, for which they paid about $15,000. These grounds will go into the city extension.

CURED BY CUTICURA.

Our oldest child, now six years of age, when an infant six months old, was attacked with a virulent, malignant skin disease. All ordinary remedies failing we called our family physician, who attempted to cure it, but it spread with almost incredible rapidly, until the lower portion of the little fellow's person from the middle of his back down to his knees was one solid rash, not, paintur, blotched, and malicious. We had no rest at night, no neace by day. Finally we were advised to try the Curicura Remedies. The effect was simply marvellous. In three or four weeks a complete cure was wrought, leaving the little fellow's person as white and healthy as though he had never been attacked. In my opinion your valuable remedies saved his life, and to-day he is a strong, healthy child, perfectly well, no repotition of the disease having ever occurred.
